In the charming village of San Pantaleo, famous for its weekly market and its bars and small stores, we find, a stone's throw from the center, we find Casa Carlotta, a delightful and characteristic property made of stone.

The wooden front door introduces the small but charming living room, fully furnished with antique furniture, which features a wooden dining table, a sofa, a fireplace and a small TV for recreational moments. To the left we find the equipped kitchen with its dining table.

In the entire property you can smell the scent of juniper, used for some elements of the house.
